Endowment for the Medical School of Georgetown University was urged by Dr. W. C. Woodward, health officer of the District of Columbia, addressing the National Alumni Association, assembled at dinner at the New Willard Hotel last night, following the ceremonies in dedication of the statue of Archbishop John Carroll, founder of the institution.

Five hundred thousand dollars was suggested by Dr. Woodward as the fund needed to provide the medical school with a corps of instructors independent of active practice. Without mentioning the name, he told of one subscriber to the fund who was willing to contribute $1,000.

Will Be Taken on Transport. British and Spanish subjects who wish to leave the west coast of Mexico will be taken aboard the army transport Buford, provided, of course, there is room after the Americans are properly cared for. The State Department yesterday requested the War Department to give these instructions to the Buford, as specific requests have come from these two governments to take care of its citizens on the United States transport. It was declared, however, that befor the Buford sailed general instructions were given to take aboard any foreigners wishing to leave after the Americans were provided with quarters. It was realized then, it was declared, that requests would come from other governments to the United States to have the American vessel take their subjects aboard.

It was determined upon, it is said, chiefly for what effect it might have upon the United States. The rebels hope that now they may succeed in having their belligerency recognized.

When Washington a year ago recognized Francisco I. Madero tite latter was in control of little else than Juarez; Diaz held the rest of Mexico. At present the rebels control the states of Chihuahua, Sonora, Durango, most of Coahuila and certain contingent territory. Their troops, outnumbering the federals, have taken the offensive and are moving south over the Chihuahua-Coahuila bor-

The Madero government deterred Gomez's arrival last night. and the Mexican consul, Senor Llorente, protested to the local police and to L. E. Ross, chief of the secret agents of the Department of Justice here, that he should be arrested on the ground that he was aiding and abetting on United States soil a revolt against a friendly power. Gomez went to the police station last night, but it was found that no evidence existed against him. He spent the night at a hotel and today, avoiding the bridges where the soldiers are on guard, proceeded to the smelter bridge a mile west of the city proper. There an automobile was waiting and he was driven rapidly back to Juarez. After being sworn in, the provisional president issued the following statement: "I came to Juarez to assume the provisional presidency of the United States of Mexico, with the object of establishing peace throughout the country. through the success of the revolution.
